

Domaine Ansen Pinot Blanc

(Alsace AOC)

100% Auxerrois

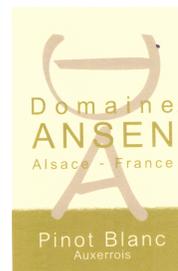

The Domaine Ansen Pinot Blanc is made from 100% Auxerrois, where in the local AOP, Auxerrois is allowed to be called Pinot Blanc when bottled. After a gentle pressing, alcoholic and malolactic fermentation happened naturally in stainless steel, where the wine was left to rest on its lees for about 10 months before bottling. Although Auxerrois is typically lower in acidity, the balance and mouth-feel of this wine comes together nicely with loads of white fruit and clean minerality. The exciting texture lingers on the palate, and makes for a very drinkable dry white wine with an assortment of dishes.

Bon Vivant

Domaine Ansen Pinot Blanc

(Alsace AOC)

100% Auxerrois

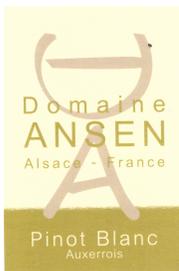

The Domaine Ansen Pinot Blanc is made from 100% Auxerrois, where in the local AOP, Auxerrois is allowed to be called Pinot Blanc when bottled. After a gentle pressing, alcoholic and malolactic fermentation happened naturally in stainless steel, where the wine was left to rest on its lees for about 10 months before bottling. Although Auxerrois is typically lower in acidity, the balance and mouth-feel of this wine comes together nicely with loads of white fruit and clean minerality. The exciting texture lingers on the palate, and makes for a very drinkable dry white wine with an assortment of dishes.

Bon Vivant

Domaine Ansen Pinot Blanc

(Alsace AOC)

100% Auxerrois

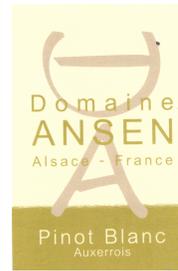

The Domaine Ansen Pinot Blanc is made from 100% Auxerrois, where in the local AOP, Auxerrois is allowed to be called Pinot Blanc when bottled. After a gentle pressing, alcoholic and malolactic fermentation happened naturally in stainless steel, where the wine was left to rest on its lees for about 10 months before bottling. Although Auxerrois is typically lower in acidity, the balance and mouth-feel of this wine comes together nicely with loads of white fruit and clean minerality. The exciting texture lingers on the palate, and makes for a very drinkable dry white wine with an assortment of dishes.

Bon Vivant

Domaine Ansen Pinot Blanc

(Alsace AOC)

100% Auxerrois

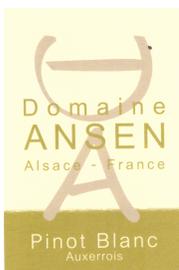

The Domaine Ansen Pinot Blanc is made from 100% Auxerrois, where in the local AOP, Auxerrois is allowed to be called Pinot Blanc when bottled. After a gentle pressing, alcoholic and malolactic fermentation happened naturally in stainless steel, where the wine was left to rest on its lees for about 10 months before bottling. Although Auxerrois is typically lower in acidity, the balance and mouth-feel of this wine comes together nicely with loads of white fruit and clean minerality. The exciting texture lingers on the palate, and makes for a very drinkable dry white wine with an assortment of dishes.

Bon Vivant

Domaine Ansen Pinot Blanc

(Alsace AOC)

100% Auxerrois

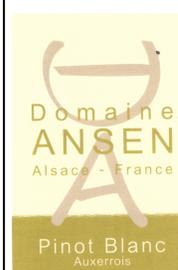

The Domaine Ansen Pinot Blanc is made from 100% Auxerrois, where in the local AOP, Auxerrois is allowed to be called Pinot Blanc when bottled. After a gentle pressing, alcoholic and malolactic fermentation happened naturally in stainless steel, where the wine was left to rest on its lees for about 10 months before bottling. Although Auxerrois is typically lower in acidity, the balance and mouth-feel of this wine comes together nicely with loads of white fruit and clean minerality. The exciting texture lingers on the palate, and makes for a very drinkable dry white wine with an assortment of dishes.

Bon Vivant

Domaine Ansen Pinot Blanc

(Alsace AOC)

100% Auxerrois

The Domaine Ansen Pinot Blanc is made from 100% Auxerrois, where in the local AOP, Auxerrois is allowed to be called Pinot Blanc when bottled. After a gentle pressing, alcoholic and malolactic fermentation happened naturally in stainless steel, where the wine was left to rest on its lees for about 10 months before bottling. Although Auxerrois is typically lower in acidity, the balance and mouth-feel of this wine comes together nicely with loads of white fruit and clean minerality. The exciting texture lingers on the palate, and makes for a very drinkable dry white wine with an assortment of dishes.

Bon Vivant